Very fun! The game looks like the X-men danger room. Some traps require a lot of velocity and planning. You do not have to use teleport in this game, and that makes the experience more immersive. The quotes are very interesting, but you need to think a bit to understand.. The idea is good, but it's poorly made. No physics, no interactions with anything except the "treasure", you can basically ask someone to take your controller (Hand) and take it to the objective and pick it up while you stand on the other side of the traps.

This is not worth 16 euro. Maybe 1-3 euro. Some levels require you to be ridiculously acrobatic and lightning fast which you can't be with a bulky headset attached with wires. And every failure is countered with a white box and a blue portal which is centered literally on the border of your playing area. So if you have drawn it close to any objects, expect to walk into them or you will have to rewrite your entire area for this game.

The shadows were nice though.
